Gasoline Price War Spreads In Vancouver Number of Stations In Terminal City Cut Motoring Cost

Several Dealers in Outskirts of Vancouver Reduce Price of Gasoline to 28 Cents a Gallon, Keeping Pace With Two Warring Downtown Firms; Majority of Stations Hold Price at Former Level of 32 Cents.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 24.—A gasoline price war which started between two downtown service stations, here on Wednesday has spread to several other service stations on the outskirts of the city, according to reports of automobile owners.

Wednesday one service station announced it had cut the price of gasoline to 28 cents a gallon, plus the tax, to meet competition from a certain quarter, which had cut the price to 25 cents, with the 5-cent tax added. The next day the rival station had brought its price down to 23 cents, with the tax added.

Other service stations in the city noticed a falling off in trade after the price was started, and some of the smaller ones on the outskirts have dropped their price to meet the competition from downtown.

Most of the service stations, however, are keeping up to the standard price of 27 cents a gallon, with the tax added. There has been no reduction in the wholesale price of gasoline to the stations.

SPROAT LAKE POWER PLANS ARE OPPOSED

Vigorous Objections Voiced at Hearing Before Water Board To-day

Industrial Firms and Residents Join in Fighting Application

On grounds that salmon and spawning grounds destroyed and beaches, residential islands and summer homes depreciated, strenuous opposition to the granting to the National Utilities Corporation Ltd. of power development rights at Sproat Lake and Sproat River were voiced at a hearing before Water Controller J. C. Macdonald and the water board this morning.

No decision was given, as approval of the undertaking must first be given by the Minister of Lands and reclamation of the water board before the controller rules on the right to develop power.

The attendance of objectors from up-island points and solicitors representing property owners was so great that it was necessary to adjourn the hearing from the Controller's office to a larger room.

Charged with murder, the man now is in a cell at Vegreville and wears handcuffs and leg irons to prevent any possible attempt at escape.

As soon as the first shots were fired against the palace, the crowds scattered and took refuge anywhere that seemed to offer shelter. All business houses put up iron shutters and the street cars were withdrawn from service.

Associated Press and Canadian Press Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 24.

—The government of President Washington Luis, which for three weeks had been fighting a widespread revolutionary movement in Brazil, was overthrown to-day and the President resigned.

The blow which ousted the administration was struck by a group of army and navy officers in Rio de Janeiro itself, a provisional headquarters being set up and a proclamation being issued, calling on all Brazilians to end the civil warfare and to establish peace again.

The coup came with dramatic swiftness shortly after midnight, military police and some troops taking their positions around the Presidential residence and cutting off traffic.

General Menna Barreto, head of the Rio de Janeiro garrison, acting in the name of a civil provisional headquarters, went to the President and demanded his resignation, but for many hours Luis refused.

FURNITURE DESTROYED
During the early hours of the day the city was quiet, but later gangs of hoodlums made their way through the main streets and attacked the offices of two newspapers which had been supporters of the government. Furniture was thrown out of upper stories and was burned. The offices were wrecked.

News of the coup was sent out by radio through the military committee and the strict censorship was lifted in order that the latest developments might be described in dispatches sent out of the country.

Later the provisional headquarters of the military committee issued a proclamation denouncing the civil warfare of the last three weeks and calling for peace.

END OF OFFENSIVES
The proclamation called on all Brazilians, whether in favor of the government or of the revolutionaries, to support the peace movement. It called on the revolutionaries to suspend their demands for the federal troops to do likewise. In addition it asked that plenipotentiaries confer with the Provisional Government set up in Rio de Janeiro in order to bring about pacification of the country.

FIVE CENTRES
The proclamation named five forts as headquarters of the Provisional Government. It was signed by Loao de Deus Menna Barreto, general of division, and Colonel Bertholdo Klinger as adjutant.

STORES PUT UP SHUTTERS
Traffic was normal in streets of the capital this morning except from the suburbs beyond the Presidential Palace, which were cut off by the military guard of the President. Later in the morning all traffic in downtown streets came to a standstill and stores and residences had their iron shutters up.

HUNDREDS OF STUDENTS FIGHT IN TORONTO

Canadian Press
Toronto, Oct. 24.—Seeking revenge for an unceremonious shower bath administered them by students of Burwash Hall, residence of Victoria College undergraduates, when they were caught in the act of serenading co-eds at the women's residence, students of the School of Practical Science organized a raid on Burwash Hall last night which resulted in a free-for-all battle and heavy casualties before police reserves halted the fun.

Both colleges are units of the University of Toronto.

The Victoria College students were more or less prepared for the attack by more than 300 School of Practical Science men, who directed their efforts toward the south and middle houses. Using a large limb of a tree, they battered in the door of the middle house, but met a warm reception. Gas canisters full of water and fire extinguishers were used to repel the advance of the S.P.S. men. But many of the latter got inside and closed with their adversaries.

DIESEL ENGINES

Robert Konkin, of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, Longview, opened a discussion on the comparative values of Diesel and steam donkey engines in yarding of logs. He told of the advantages of Diesel engines and expressed satisfaction with their service, although the logs each 200 horsepower machine could log was smaller than that served by steam engines.

A somewhat surprising factor was that the best operators of Diesel donkeys were steam engineers, who were prompt in action when the signal was given. Factory trained Diesel men too often were monkey wrenching when the call for operation was given. Mr. Konkin believed the economy offered by the Diesel engine would make them popular, as the full possibilities of the machines had not yet been ascertained. The tentative depreciation period had been placed at ten years but the true life of Diesel donkeys was not yet known.

D. S. Denman, Crown-Willamette Paper Co., said two Diesel donkeys had operated well in cold decking, the engines working only sixty per cent of the time.

Ray asserted the Diesel machine to be among the most flexible available for log loggers. The interest charges on $800 annually higher than for investment in steam donkeys, but savings in wages amounted to $4,500 annually.

STEAM OVERHEAD LOW

T. Murray, of Tacoma, took issue on the overhead, preferring steam. Although Diesel engine would cost $25,000, while an old steam pot, only valued at $1,000 or $2,500 would do the work. The cost of a new Diesel on an eight months' working basis is costs $500 each month compared to the old steam pot, which compares in price much more monthly for pay-laborers and buckers," he asserted.

Philip Neff, of the U.S. Forest Service, presented a series of charts showing studies of operating costs and a considerable discussion showed that Diesel conditions were an important factor in successful log operations. Many areas showed economy in getting logs to rail, while other areas had reverted to steam donkeys. Upkeep was heavy, but improvement in manufacture of tracks and parts had greatly reduced this expense.

"TOM CATS" NOTED

E. P. Stam discussed theoretical use of a super-tractor termed "Tom Cat," a "cold decking" or hauling logs to a central depot. Reduction in "skidding" rigging would result and the time required in moving would be cut, an actual working time being attained. A theoretical scheme of operation was outlined which showed a "Tom Cat" would be specially designed and equipped, would greatly reduce costs in many operations.

Keen questions were asked as to weight and speed of movement. One delegate, when informed that the weight would be 55,000 pounds, and the speed of two miles an hour and the cost doubled the ordinary investment of $10,000, suggested the proposed name "Tom Cat" should be abandoned, "Pole-cat" being more descriptive.

F. G. Baker, of Longview, discussed loading problems and some novel boom apparatus used by the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company.

Discussion of railroading problems was opened by Walter J. Ryan of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company of Tacoma, who reviewed organization and equipment. Mr. Ryan said recent improvement of brake apparatus had greatly reduced operating costs by elimination of accidents.

The firing was in the centre of the city, but it was believed to be more in the nature of a demonstration than as a real attack which might result in bloodshed.

OFFICIALS FLEE

The correspondent of the Associated Press went to the government buildings, including the Governor's Palace, and found all officials had fled. Sentries were on duty.

While the firing was going on crowds in other parts of the city paraded the streets, cheering wildly. It was reported there had been no real opposition to the new government and what firing was done was due to misunderstanding.

PEOPLE CELEBRATE

Pernambuco, Brazil, Oct. 24.—A radio broadcast from Rio de Janeiro to-day said the military school there had revolted, the cadets being led by several high army officers.

Shortly afterward it was announced that the navy, which had remained loyal to the government, had joined the revolutionary movement.

The bulletin announcing the new movement were posted by newspapers the people became wild with joy. Banks and shops closed in honor of the victory.

SPROAT LAKE POWER PLANS ARE OPPOSED

Reviews Negotiations
Mr. Coward and A. D. King presented the case for the National Utilities Corporation. Mr. Coward reviewed negotiations of a year and a half ago when the corporation secured the electrical distributing plant of Alberni and the generating and distributing plant of Port Alberni. At this time the B.C. Power Corporation, through its subsidiary the Vancouver Island Power Company Limited, was investigating power possibilities of Campbell River. Mr. Coward said the company was very much interested in the south-east part of Vancouver Island, and to show its good faith it planned to purchase smaller plants in the north of the Island. In June it took over the Alberni plants and completed the operating company, National Utilities Corporation Limited. In agreement with the cities it acquired the power within the district and to encourage industries using power to go there. It agreed to develop 3,000 horsepower of hydro-electric power within eighteen months. The lake and Sproat River in August, 1930. It was planned to construct a storage and diversion dam 200 feet above Great Central Lake high-water bridge. It would raise the level of Sproat Lake a minimum of three feet. Hundreds of acres would be affected by flooding at high water period.

Answering G. Davis, who opposed the application, Mr. Coward said there were now 115 horsepower available which was sufficient for present needs. The company eventually expected to get sufficient power from Campbell River for the whole of the Island, but when the project was undertaken would depend on the industrial situation.

In reply to W. de B. Farris, K.C., who represented Bloedel, Stewart & Welsh, W. L. Keith, E. A. Turnbull, F. A. Smith and the Detroit Trust Company, Mr. Coward said a small amount had been allowed for flood damage. Mr. Farris commented that the loss to his clients would be $250,000. The company was above the economic development rate. Mr. Coward said, and would have to seek permission to charge the people of Alberni and Port Alberni more.

DAMAGE FISH INDUSTRY

Alex. Rowland, speaking for canning interests, elicited the information no provision had been made for fish capture. Millions of dollars worth of fish passed over, and the dam would jeopardize the fish industry for this generation and posterity.

A. D. Cress and H. H. Shandley spoke for themselves and clients owning property in the district. Island on which would be submerged if the level of the lake were raised, they said. Beaches of the lake would disappear. The homes of the lake would be destroyed. Cottages near the edge of the lake as summer resorts would be rendered useless.

"To those familiar with the lake it would be an outrageous project," said Mr. Cress. "It would mean the destruction of the lake and the fish industry."

W. MacNaughton for the Alberni Board of Trade, warned against endangering the fishing industry.

Fred G. Cox opposed the application on behalf of auto camp owners.

Hubert Cooke, a resident by the lake, said his garden would be completely flooded. For residents, he said, the most beautiful lake on Vancouver Island would be ruined.

Miss Isabel Payne said an electric plant would detract from the lakes as a summer resort.

F. C. Manning, president of the Sproat Lake Sawmills, said to raise the level of the lake would flood the first floor of his mill and render it useless.

besides sawmills.

Carmichael opposed the application on behalf of the canned salmon section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

PRICE OF ELECTRICITY

Gordon Campbell, solicitor for Port Alberni, said the company went into the matter with their eyes open. Port Alberni was not to be sold for $225,000, he remarked. He suggested that if the company were released from the contract to proceed with the work Port Alberni would be entitled to some compensation from the B.C. Power Corporation. He said that if the application were turned down the company would bring in power from Campbell River at the present schedule, but Mr. Coward was unable to give an immediate answer.

J. P. Babcock, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries, said it was stupid for Port Alberni to try and force people to dam a stream which was the greatest asset in the district. The trout there were even more valuable than the sockeye, he said.

LIST IS LENGTHENED

Thus was added another victim to the long list of gangsters slain in the strife that had its beginning in the slaying of Dion O'Banion in 1924, and which included the machine gun slaying of seven followers of Moran a year ago last Valentine's Day in a North Clark Street garage.

Various theories and beliefs were advanced by the authorities as possible explanations of gangland's latest slaying. One of these was that Aiello's death might have had some connection with the slaying last June 9 of Alfred Lingie, a reporter of the Chicago Tribune, known as a friend of "Scarface" Al Capone.

However, shortly after midnight the military engaged with the possibility that the President might have been given an opportunity to finish his term, which would have ended November 15.

NO REPORT TO U.S.

Washington, Oct. 24.—An official dispatch to the State Department from the United States Embassy at Rio de Janeiro, filed at 11 a.m. to-day, was said by Secretary Stimson to have made no mention of the governmental overthrow in that country.

The Luis administration of Brazil fell before a revolution which, beginning Friday, October 23, just three weeks ago, spread rapidly over the entire republic until but three of the major eastern seaboard states, Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Bahia, remained loyal to the government.

President Washington Luis, whose full name was Dr. Washington Luis Pereira de Souza, assumed office Nov. 15, 1926, and was to have served until November 15 of this year, when he would have been succeeded by President-elect Julio Prestes who recently completed a visit to the United States.

In the north forces from Parahyba, one of the original revolting states, moved southward under Captain Juarez Tavora and on the night of October 11, took Pernambuco, establishing a revolutionary Junta there.

The revolutionary movement in Central Brazil developed principally in the state of Minas Gerais.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE LEADS

The revolution broke first in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, farthest south of the divisions which made up the Brazilian union. Troops formed there under the leadership of Dr. Getulio Vargas, President of the state and a candidate in the recent national presidential election.

The State of Santa Catharina and Parana fell quickly into the hands of the large southern army was rushed to the Parana-Sao Paulo border, where battles have been in progress for more than two weeks, with conflicting claims of victory. The fighting centred about Itaipu, railroad point on the Sao Paulo border.

FOURTH ON CONTINENT TO FALL

Fall of the Brazilian government marks the fourth overthrow of a de facto administration by revolution in South America since the first of the South American states to be overthrown by revolution was Chile, and to some extent Mexico, but the governments of those countries remained in control.

In no case, except Brazil, however, did the rebellion occupy more than a few days, the tremendous popular uprisings which accompanied the movement being sufficient to upset the regime without great difficulty. Military governments are at present in power in Mexico, Peru and Argentina.

There was every prospect until recently that the Brazil revolution might stretch on for months.

DICTATORSHIP CHARGES

The insurgent movement was based primarily on charges of a dictatorship of the metropolitan districts, including Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo and Bahia, from which the rural districts, such as Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina, cattle raising areas, were allegedly excluded. The Liberal party, headed by Vargas, charged fraud in the last presidential election, and claimed it was defrauded in the election.

The government charged by statement and inference that the revolution was inspired by communistic agitation and cited the red flags used by the insurgents in support of their contention. The insurgents answered this charge with a statement that the red flag had always been the flag of the Liberal party leading in the movement. At Pernambuco the provincial government issued an emphatic declaration that there was a communistic tinge to the movement.

HARBOR BOARD INQUIRIES START

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Oct. 24.—It was announced by Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, to-day that an order-in-council had been passed providing for an inquiry under the Inquiries Act into the administration of Halifax harbor by the late Harbor Commission.

The inquiry will be conducted by Mr. Justice O'Neil of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and it is understood will begin at an early date.

The inquiry into the administration of Halifax harbor, it is stated on good authority, is but the first of a number to be held. There will be similar inquiries into the operation of other harbors, commissions, and announcements to this effect will probably be made in the near future.

JAIL SENTENCE IS QUASHED

Vancouver, Oct. 24.—With four out of five of the pending judges' decisions handed down judgment quashing the conviction and sentence of two years' imprisonment of A. D. Bowen, former head of the Bowen Utilities Corporation Limited.

Bowen was sentenced by Judge H. S. Cayley on charges of knowingly publishing false statements regarding plans of his company in connection with the building of a light line of railway in the Peace River country, acquiring of land for townships and other claims, made chiefly in book-let, issued entitled, "Building a New Empire."

Chief Justice J. A. Macdonald was the only dissenting judge to the finding, which quashed the sentence and set aside the conviction. He believed the case should be handed down without reasons later.

R. W. CHANLER, ARTIST, DIES

Woodstock, N.Y., Oct. 24.—Robert Winthrop Chanler, noted artist and former husband of Lina Cavalari, opera singer, died early this morning after a long illness.

LT.-GOVERNOR ADDS SUPPORT TO CAMPAIGN

Armistice Day is rapidly approaching and with half of the stock still on hand it is hoped that the wide-spread publicity to the work and need of the men engaged will result in the whole of the remaining stock being sold, thus enabling the men to get off ahead for next year's campaign. It would bring courage and confidence and also happiness to the hearts of all those who are giving of their time and support to the Red Cross and Armistice Day work to feel that the war disabled veterans in the shop could rely upon an increased demand. It is particularly requested that outlying districts send in their orders as soon as possible.

When Miss Mackenzie was presented with a large poppy, she smiled and said she quite expected to be given one as her sister had written in the regularly visited Red Cross Shop at this time of the year and she was always given a large silk poppy.

The veterans were warmly greeted by the fact that the former chateaux of Government House had not forgotten them, and they asked Miss Mackenzie to send one to Mrs. J. Piggott in memory of the many occasions she had honored them with her presence at the Red Cross Shop.

MANY POPPIES AND WEATHERS

In the evening His Honor called at the campaign headquarters, 629 Fort Street, where he was received by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Percy Lake, R.C.B., K.C.M.G.; Fred Landsberg, chairman and member of the committee. He expressed his keen interest in the campaign and its objectives, which, he said, had his whole-hearted support. He believed that citizens would respond nobly to the appeal and that the Red Cross and Armistice Day Committee would receive, through the joint drive, the support which would enable them to continue their excellent work of assisting the veterans and their families, and permit them to continue their other splendid peace-time service.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parman (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dripping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

The successful valuation of all the Parman in New York City is $10,000,000.00.

Hanbury Urged To Seek Chief Vancouver Post

Vancouver, Oct. 24.—Wilfred Hanbury, M.P. for Burrard, has been asked to run for the post of mayor of Vancouver. A delegation numbering approximately forty representative citizens waited on him in his office and laid the request before him. Mr. Hanbury replied that in view of his existing obligations as a member of parliament he would require time for consideration. He fixed no date for the giving of a definite answer. So far, L. D. Taylor, who after seven years in the mayor's chair, was the only candidate who has formally announced himself. Mayor Malkin has not yet indicated whether he wishes to run, although supporters in the last campaign have been urging him to stand for another two-year term.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN IN RUSSIA IS FOUND LAGGING

Industrial Scheme Five Per Cent Below Goal in Its Second Year

Moscow, Oct. 24.—Investia, organ of the central executive committee of the Communist Party, yesterday admitted Solov's five-year industrialization plan had finished its second year October 1 five per cent below schedule, yet in an editorial the paper claimed a great victory all along the line for Communist government.

The biggest deficiency was shown in the light industries, which showed only an eleven per cent increase, against the twenty-three per cent planned. The newspaper called attention to a 38.1 per cent increase in industries to which the government devoted greatest attention, this being only 2.6 per cent under the increase expected.

The paper was jubilant especially at what it termed the great success of collective farming, and it claimed that during the year a total of 128,700,000 hectares were cultivated, of which 38,000,000 were cultivated in collectivized fashion. The figures were claimed to exceed the five-year plan by 23,000,000 hectares.

Investia also called attention to 12,000 tractors and 40,000,000 rubles worth of machinery distributed during the year. Failure of the light industries to achieve the schedule figures was laid to lack of raw materials, a lack it is expected to overcome during the third year of the plan.

Attention was called to an increase of sixty per cent in the 1930 cotton crop and of 150 per cent in the sugar beet crop.

The national income for 1930 is 33,000,000,000 rubles (about $19,200,000,000), the paper said, "of which two-thirds are in the hands of socialist sectors. Conditions necessary for wide socialistic advance on all fronts are ripe. The Bolshevik five-year plan is achieving great victories. It can and must be carried out in four years."

EMPIRE AND FOREIGN TRADE

DESPITE RESOLUTIONS PASSED THE other day by the Federation of British Industries and by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, favoring the Bennett tariff preference scheme, some business men in Great Britain are questioning whether empire trade is really of such basic importance to the Old Country itself, to the Dominions, to the economic unity of the empire as a whole, as is generally supposed. This speculation obviously is based upon two statistical facts. In the first place, nearly two-thirds of Great Britain's exports are sold in world markets outside the British Commonwealth; and, in the second place, with few exceptions, foreign, not empire, markets are the principal outlets for Dominion products. It then is being argued that inter-empire preferences doubtless would tend to increase the imperial exchange and, if extended to foodstuffs, could effect some important single diversions. But behind this is the suggestion that inter-empire trade gains through artificially forced diversions might be seriously offset by the loss of foreign trade as the result of counter-measures.

Great Britain's total trade with the whole world for the fiscal year 1928 amounted to approximately $10,000,000,000. Of this turnover about $3,460,000,000 represents the value of her business with all British countries, her exchange with this Dominion in the same year being $597,127,216, dropping in the fiscal year ending with last March to $472,352,711. Of the British continental groups Australasia leads the way in total trade with Britain, the account for 1928 being $890,000,000; Asia comes next with $703,750,000; Canada comes third with, as noted above, $597,127,216, with South Africa, East Africa and other African states in fourth place. Canada is placed under the group heading of America, but the total of her trade does not include the comparatively insignificant aggregate of other British territory on this continent.

On the basis of these statistics, therefore, we find that in the year 1928, out of Great Britain's total business of approximately $10,000,000,000, more than $6,000,000,000 was done with countries outside the empire. With this fact in mind it is interesting to consider certain arguments relating to the difficulties facing the Imperial Conference which are advanced by an important United States business weekly. It says in part:

What is standing out in striking relief to thoughtful students of the problem is the fact that the commonwealth cannot logically be expected to form itself into a natural self-sufficient economic unit. Instead, each component as it realizes its own economic potentialities, forms non-empire interests according to economic circumstances and relative advantages. Already at the root of many difficulties is the increasing competitive importance of the Dominions and colonies as they develop industry. This will increase as white populations grow and native populations reach greater purchasing power, and as local raw material resources, existing or potential, are developed. Trade preferences cannot check this trend, while the more Dominion and colonial industrialization progresses, the more England will lose its original significance as the industrial hub of the empire; finally, the more British unemployment and social costs are increased, the more the nation's competitive power is weakened.

On this aspect of the situation, moreover, certain economists draw a distinction between industries which the Dominions and colonies can develop against Great Britain—thus adding to idle plants and to unemployment—and those industries which the Dominions and colonies cannot economically develop because their domestic markets afford too narrow outlets to support their growth. Incidentally, much has been said about our industrial development, our wonderful supply of natural resources—meaning more material for use in factories—that the time long has passed when Canada can be considered as merely the granary of the empire. This Dominion always will be a great agricultural country; but it also is destined to become a great manufacturing country. Hence, as we are reminded above, "trade preferences cannot check this trend." In the main, therefore, the principal problem to be solved as far as the empire's economic difficulties are concerned, is to find a way to produce a more balanced condition between Britain's over-industrialization and the Dominions' under-industrialization. Is there an artificial tariff formula for this? Leading economists say there is not.

25,000,000 OUT OF WORK

OFFICIALS OF THE METAL TRADES department of the American Federation of Labor estimate that some 25,000,000 men are out of work in the world to-day. The guess may not be exact, but it is probably close enough to the mark for all intents and purposes. And it makes a startling and uncomfortable morsel for thought.

The amount of human suffering that lies back of that figure is appalling. How many deaths from starvation, disease and sheer worry have already proceeded from that enormous, globe-circling army of jobless men can only be imagined, as can the number that will proceed from it during the next six months.

Yet it is probably the most important single fact in the world to-day; a fact that constitutes the greatest possible criticism of the civilization we inhabit. It is hardly too much to say that if this criticism cannot be met, during the next decade or so, the civilization it attacks will finally come to a shattering overturn and give place to something new.

For this unemployment is something that mankind has brought on itself. The madness of war and of international rivalries have a large responsibility; even larger is the responsibility on the machine.

The machine, indeed, emerges as the major villain of the piece. It has displaced workers by the hundreds of thousands throughout the world. It enables manufacturers to produce more goods with fewer workers. Jobs that required a hundred men a generation ago now require three men and a machine. Furthermore, the machine produces things so fast that it glut the market, and even the workers who have not been dispossessed see their jobs vanish during times of overproduction. This, of course, is familiar to everyone. But the implications of it are worth thinking about.

Some of the things the machine has brought in as by-products have been highly unpleasant. It has afflicted civilization with a great deal of ugliness. It has created enormous cities and condemned millions of their inhabitants to a mechanical, spiritless existence. It has tremendously increased the strain of life for all of us.

These things could be endured if the machine fulfilled the promise inherent in its genesis—the promise that it would relieve the world of drudgery, wipe out poverty and make times easier and better for all mankind. If that promise is not fulfilled, however, the machine becomes utterly insupportable.

That is why the existence of these 25,000,000 jobless is such an important matter. If our civilization can find a way to put these men back at work, the machine age will vindicate itself. It fails—well, our children, and perhaps we ourselves, may see this civilization replaced by another.

SIR JOHN NORTON-GRIFFITHS

THE NEWS OF THE TRAGIC END OF Sir John Norton-Griffiths, the eminent British engineer, in Egypt, must have been a shock to many in Canada. He had been associated with a number of engineering works in this country, while there is speculation now in engineering circles in the United States, particularly those who take a pride in the great Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals, as to whether his death will permanently halt the work on the rising of the Assuan Dam across the Nile.

At present the Wilson Dam is the greatest of all dams in point of total cubic content of masonry. The Assuan Dam, however, is higher and longer—a mile and one-fourth long, and about 131 feet high, compared with the Wilson Dam of less than a mile in length and 116 feet in height. Sir John was working on a project to raise the Assuan Dam an additional thirty feet—operations are suspended for the time being—which would give it a greater total masonry than the Wilson Dam.

Quite recently, it will be remembered, Sir John Norton-Griffiths paddled out in a surf-boat at Alexandria. Shortly afterwards it was noticed that the little craft appeared to be unoccupied. Another boat went out to investigate, and Sir John was found lying dead with a bullet wound in the temple. Trouble with inexperienced Egyptian engineer inspectors, who hampered his work, together with a financial tangle the news of the unraveling of which did not reach him in time, is given as the reason for the taking of his life—a life crammed full of action, adventure, and achievement.

During the war Sir John's greatest service to the Allies was his destruction of many of the valuable Roumanian oil wells before the German armies under Mackensen and Falkenhayn could capture and use them. With his own hands he destroyed much of the machinery. For this he was knighted.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MR. BENNETT'S TARIFF
The Detroit News

What are we to think of, or do about, Canada's drastic course? The items affected by the Bennett increases number 130 and include iron and steel products, agricultural machinery, textiles, boots and shoes, meats and gasoline. A large volume of exports is hit by each. Mr. Bennett carries out the will of the Canadian people, expressed at the polls. In fairness, how may we then resent the course of the Bennett regime?

THE CURSE OF TARIFFS
The London Advertiser

The fact that Berlin, Germany, gave a majority for Communist candidates cannot mean that the majority of Berliners want the Russian system of government. It means, probably, that they are harassed by unemployment, low wages and high prices and struck at the government through the ballot box as the only constitutional means of protest. The government has had a difficult task and cannot be blamed for all of Germany's woes. With the return of better times the extremist parties will lose strength. But all Europe is sick, politically and economically, and other nations cannot view Germany's plight with indifference. There is crying need for the co-operation of all European countries in removing the barriers which divide them and retard their prosperity.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, OCTOBER 24, 1905

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity: Easterly to southerly winds, unsettled and mild, with rain.

Wooden water pipe was given a boost last evening by the city council, when the body adopted the report of the special committee appointed for the purpose of inquiring into the merits of this kind of pipe compared with the old-time iron pipe.

After an extensive tour of the eastern states and Canada for the purpose of looking into the methods of the sightseeing automobile concerns of the largest cities, J. Hostein, of the Victoria Transfer Company, returned several days ago perfectly satisfied with the results of his trip.

The steam plant which is being installed by the B.C. Electric Railway Company at their Store Street headquarters should be ready for operation in the near future.

Nothing has yet been heard of the reorganization of the British Columbia rugby football league, although the Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo teams have been preparing for some weeks for the forthcoming championship struggle.

The Watson Stock Company opened its season at the Victoria Theatre last evening. The company is not new to this city, although since its last appearance here it has undergone great changes in its personnel. The popularity of the company was well shown at the Victoria Theatre when the company returned to the city last evening.

Loose Ends

There is more gloom out our way
With little relief from Mr. Whiffle-ton's friend—The little girl and the plumber.

By H. B. W.

IT HAS OFTEN occurred to me that people who read columns like this would feel a great compassion for those who write them, if they could see the circumstances under which they are sometimes written. If they could see these circumstances, indeed, they might even be willing to forgive the writing of them altogether.

TO-DAY, FOR instance, there is nothing whatever out this way to put up the yawning caverns of this column, or the great stretches of white paper which now confront me. For the last hour or so I have been gazing out at the newly-ploughed brown fields, the last of the chrysanthemums, the "half-naked oak trees, the red Japanese maple by the pond and the hazy outlines of the Sooke Hills far away in a blankness in my mind and a despair in my heart which passeth understanding. Somehow this paper and this column must be filled. But how? If I were a statesman of the abler sort I should simply say that there was the problem and I would leave it to the intelligent electors. Not being a statesman I cannot leave it to the intelligent electors, and I don't believe the electors are intelligent, anyway. Not intelligent enough to fill this column, in any event.

BESIDES, THEY make it as hard as possible out our way to do anything. I wasted at least an hour this afternoon on an old friend of Mr. Whiffleton's with a red nose and a look of old port about him, who came over all the way from England, apparently, to tell me that he didn't believe in free state education. At least I could see no other reason for his coming, and very little for his being born, for that matter.

AFTER I HAD insulted this old gentleman off the place the little girl from next door came along, of course, to show me her new red hat, which her mother knitted for her. She was very proud of it, and referred to it repeatedly as her "red twat" (since the letter "h" is a little beyond her yet). I didn't spoil it by informing her of the dismal fact that her mother, who is a very young and highly imaginative knitter, had made it three sizes too big on one side and approximately the same amount too small on the other. Now, of course, the visit of the little girl next door at this time in the afternoon has a set ritual, which one would not think of varying in the smallest particular. In the first place, one has to give her a red, sticky candy out of a bottle kept secretly for the purpose behind a bookshelf, and strictly against the instructions of the lady next door. She would never let the little girl come if she knew that we were secretly feeding her sticky red candies. After that one gives her a ride on one's knee, reciting this ancient and impressive chant:

"Ladies go niminy, niminy, niminy.
O gentlemen go trotty, trotty, trotty.
The farmer 'twixt yellow, lags, behind
To get a jug of beer, and then
He goes gallopy, gallopy, gallopy."

WITH THE last line one tosses the rider up and down as high as possible and then stops, quite exhausted, and envying the farmer in this incredible tale. A few sides of this sort and you can consider yourself well exercised for the day. After that the china mandarin, This old gentleman wags his head, puts out his tongue and wiggles his hands in the most charming fashion, as he has been doing to my positive knowledge for 100 years. I can remember the old chap when I was a boy no bigger than the little girl next door, solemnly wagging in a great stone house by the old 88th Lawrence, and they say he had been in the family then a good half-century. They used to show him to me then as a great mystery, just as we show him to the little girl from next door now, and he is still so active and agile that I have no doubt they will be showing him to other little boys and girls 100 years from now, if we don't break him meanwhile.

ANYWAY, AFTER watching the mandarin's performance with those great brooding eyes of childhood, the little girl says: "I go madder, too," and solemnly wags her head, puts out her tongue and wiggles her hands. Then, after turning two somersaults and switching the radio from an excellent concert to a gentleman making a political speech in Yakima, Wash., the little girl from next door ends the interview. It has wasted the best part of an hour, but somehow I cannot be annoyed with her. I am weak-minded that way, which is something in my favor, and I suppose these interviews will cease soon enough; for she says herself, "When I going sick, I going kool," which I take to mean that when she is six she will go to school, "a big fat school down road."

TO THE AFFLICTIONS of this afternoon has been added a plumber. Can you imagine writing a column with the assistance of a plumber? I mean to say—a plumber is usually a pretty good fellow and comforting, too, when a pipe is broken, but as an assistant in this unworthy business I could think of something a little more inspiring, don't you know?

THIS, HOWEVER, is no ordinary plumber. As I sit hopeless over my typewriter and he sits fixing my leaky hot-water radiator, he advances the theory that I have not any of my plumbing, which, of course, is profoundly untrue, but I am too dis-

System of Helping Promising Students Shown By Minister

Selective Method of Higher Education Favored by Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe in Address Before Fellowship; Present System Unsatisfactory, He Declares; Favors New Zealand Plan of Paying for Schooling of Pupils Whose Academic Merit Promises to Return Value to Community.

That the present education system in British Columbia was not satisfactory and that any which limited the opportunity of a student by age or grade would be no better were two of the points stressed by Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, in his lecture on "Some Educational Problems and Some of the Efforts Being Made to Solve Them," before the New Education Fellowship at Victoria College yesterday evening. The minister, during his remarks, favored a system similar to that in existence in New Zealand and Great Britain, which, through a process of selection, gave opportunity to those students who promised to return to the community some benefit for their teaching. Such a method should be supported by the government, he thought, if it were found applicable to conditions in British Columbia.

The province might be able to afford the waste in time and material going on in the present system, he stated, but could not afford to waste the brains that might be developed among the poorer scholars were they financially able to continue study in higher education.

Earlier or later, Mr. Hinchliffe said, the people of British Columbia would have to decide how far the province was responsible for the education of youth. As Minister of Education, he pointed out, he could not be influenced to too great an extent by those favoring intensive cultural development. Neither could he allow those with strictly utilitarian motives to lead him too far.

He was forced to justify to the ratepayers the amount of money spent in education.

PRESENT RESPONSIBILITY

Under the present system the government was responsible to the people for the education of children between the ages of six and fifteen, he noted, saying that between those ages legislation forced the child to attend school. But, he asked, did not the system overlook the highly impressionable and formative period before the child was sent to school. At that age, the child had acquired an important part of his education and along with a certain rudimentary academic knowledge had learned that he had certain rights and that others had certain rights which he had to observe. Hence, Mr. Hinchliffe contended, by that time the child had developed its character.

What should the government's responsibility be and when should it end, he queried, adding that if he could answer those questions he would have solved all the educational problems of the province.

B.C.'S EASIEST WAY

The first, that restricted by age was observed in British Columbia, where the government cared for the child's education between the years of six and fifteen, furnishing free accommodation and teaching for the student. By that time the government's responsibility was at an end, although, if the different school boards wished to increase the age of leaving school, it would be permitted to do so, he added.

That the system did not satisfy the people of British Columbia was shown in the fact that they had not ceased to provide for children of greater age, the minister pointed out. The second suggestion was one based on achievement. This would have the child who had reached a certain grade no longer an object of government responsibility. Among the class of people who shared this view were some who contended that a rudimentary education was sufficient, while others maintained the system should extend to the high schools.

But as no distinct efforts had been made to define the responsibility of the system, he thought it would prove as unsatisfactory as that in use at the present time.

AS MUCH DESIRED

Of a modern trend was the idea, prevalent in the west, that the government should observe neither age nor standard qualifications or any other discriminations, but should give the student as much free education as he needed or thought he needed. This, however, he maintained, would do little more than the present method to satisfy the needs of the day.

The system in use now was not adequate because it was not being carried out in practice, the standard qualification was ineffectual because it would be impossible and the third method could not be adopted since no country would stand for it, he maintained.

FAVORS SCHOLARSHIP SYSTEM

Far more to his preference were the systems developed in Scotland, England and New Zealand, he continued. In those countries students were promoted according to their merit. Those who showed outstanding ability and gave promise of returning to the community some of the value they received through higher education, were given scholarships to continue their studies. Others were allowed to proceed with their school work providing they paid for it.

The chief fault he found with the Scottish system lay in the fact that there were insufficient scholarships, the minister averred.

In England, he stated, they carried the system to a still higher degree. Not only did they give promising children scholarships to continue their academic work, but also furnished funds to permit them to go on with their studies without having to pinch themselves and develop inferiority complexes.

Indeed, he stated, he had learned that many of the brightest and best students in leading British universities were from the poor families who had been able to continue their academic training through government grants. In New Zealand the system was developed to an even greater extent. In that country, he had learned, students were promoted on two standards, one for a simple pass and the other for scholarships.

Those who, by their work, the authorities considered worthy of higher education, continued with the government paying for their tuition, while those who managed to scrape through but did not show signs of being able to return to the community any value for what they received in higher education, were permitted to continue the studies at their own expense.

In British Columbia, if the latter system were adopted without changes in present legislation, the government would carry the student up to his sixteenth birthday. After that he would be forced to realize that his advancement depended purely upon himself. If he merited higher education in the eyes of the authorities, he would be subsidized, but if his showing was mediocre, and did not give promise, he would be forced to pay fees to continue.

WOULD CARE FOR NON-ACADEMIC

However, he continued, the inauguration of such a method would not entirely disregard the child who was not adapted for academic education. Those who failed to make the grade in scholastic learning would be better and applied at some vocation for which they were naturally suited.

It was one of the cruellest things in the present system to allow a young man to continue to university before acquainting him with the fact that he was not cut out for academic pursuits, the speaker said. It required a great deal of courage for the youth to return to the beginning and pick up his life threads where he digressed to the wrong field, he added.

The selective method would give educational authorities some tangible idea on which to work and might lead to far greater results than the

PREPARED TO ASSIST STUDENTS

The government was prepared to spend money even to the extent of keeping a pupil while he was at university if he showed promise of becoming a greater asset to the community through further schooling, the minister declared.

The people of British Columbia did not accept the present method as satisfactory, he concluded, adding that the solution of the problem did not rest entirely upon the hands of the Department of Education, but upon parents and educationalists generally in the province.

Dr. W. G. Wilson tendered a vote of thanks to the minister. B. C. Nicholas occupied the chair. Miss Ethel Bruce, Mrs. Wilfred Ord, A. S. Whitley, J. M. Campbell, Ira Dillworth and J. T. Stott took part in the discussion which followed the address.

Helen Hicks Wins Invitation Golf Tourney in South

Del Monte, Oct. 24.—Adding a dazzling 79, one over par for women, at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club yesterday, Helen Hicks, of Inwood, Long Island, New York, won the thirty-six-hole low gross and low net honors in the Del Monte invitation golf tournament. Her score Wednesday on the Pebble Beach course was 82, for a total of 161.

Miss Hicks's tee shots, a little off line Wednesday, were right down the middle yesterday, and she finished the round with four birdies and one eagle to her credit.

U.B.C. WILL FACE STIFF OPPOSITION

Must Defeat University of Saskatchewan Gridders to Win Western Title.

Game To-morrow Expected to Be Gruelling Affair; Other Important Fixtures

Winnipeg, Oct. 24.—The twisting, kicking under dog of Prairie football is slated to perform his final twist and deliver his last, futile kick of 1930 on a widespread grouping of gridiron Saturday. A climactic day for champions, Saturday is expected to produce only more aches and pains for downtrodden rugby teams that failed to get anywhere when they had the chance.

Ten big squads will report for duty on half as many battlegrounds between Winnipeg and the Rocky Mountain divide. Two of them are already winners of provincial titles. They will report for contests aimed to keep them in fighting form for the Western Canada playoffs.

But Saskatoon and Calgary fans are excited over seasonal highlight clashes. University of British Columbia, seeking intercollegiate supremacy in the west, meet University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon. Calgary Tigers will become Alberta champions for the second straight time if they defeat Edmonton's Eskimos.

The powerful British Columbia student team, fresh from a convincing triumph over University of Alberta, will win the B.C. title if they out-score Saskatchewan. But the giant green opposition, one of the best college teams produced on the prairies in several seasons, has been unbeaten for two years at home. They are reckoned a considerably tougher proposition than British Columbia faced at Edmonton. The only game Saskatchewan has lost in two years was at Vancouver a year ago. British Columbia defeated them two straight in a post-season series.

PACE SETTERS TO MEET IN O.C. SOCCER

Arsenal, First Division Leaders, Will Meet West Ham United at Home

Aston Villa to Oppose Leicester City; Unbeaten Motherwell Meet Celtic

London, Oct. 24.—The first clash of teams who have set the early pace in English and Scottish soccer will come on Saturday. Most of the clubs in the various divisions who have shown strength to date are drawn against one another. In the English First Division, while Arsenal, the league leaders, are drawn at home against their fellow townsmen, West Ham United, Aston Villa, runners-up, must play Leicester City on the latter's own grounds. Leicester City are fifth in the standing. The draw also brings together Derby County, the third club, and Sheffield Wednesday, in fourth position.

In the Second Division, Preston North End, pace setters, go to Burnley, and a tough struggle will result. Rye House, who made a great showing until last Saturday, when they had to relinquish first position to Preston, are drawn against Tottenham Hotspur. Both clubs are working hard to get back into the First Division. Lincoln City, leading the Northern Section of the Third Division, meet the runners-up, Chesterfield. Notts County, leaders of the Southern Section, have an easier task in Gillingham. In the Scottish First Division, Motherwell, unbeaten so far, stack up at home against Celtic, and it will be the feature match of the fixtures north of the Tweed.

COASTICE SERIES IS CALLED OFF

Pacific Coast League and California League Will Not Play Interleague Games

Californians Not Sufficiently Organized, Patrick Says; May Arrange Exhibitions

Vancouver, Oct. 24.—Pacific Coast League hockey clubs will not play a regular interleague schedule with the California Hockey League this winter. That was the net result of the conference held yesterday here between Frank Patrick, president of the Coast League, and John J. Allen Jr. of Oakland, newly-elected leader of the California League.

According to Patrick, the Californians are not yet organized for the new season. They are not sure whether they will have four clubs or five in their circuit, and general arrangements for the present season are still very much up in the air.

"We have our own annual meeting in Tacoma Tuesday," Patrick stated, "and we have to draw up a schedule then. On the basis of the latest data, we find it impossible to enter into negotiations with the California League at present."

There is yet a possibility that fans will be able to see some of the California League players in action this winter, though, Patrick intimated. Although Marching definite has been decided, one club from each league may play exhibition games with the clubs of the other.

The main idea of a series of this kind would be to test the calibre of the hockey played in the league and see if it would be really feasible to play inter-league games in the future. This matter will be decided upon by the league heads once the season gets under way.

Decision to abandon the interleague idea at present does not mean that the idea will be shelved indefinitely. It was gathered from Patrick's remarks. Providing satisfactory arrangements can be made, there is a possibility that the idea might be developed in the future.

Vancouver, Oct. 24.—Dr. Shrum, president of the British Columbia Football Union, announced yesterday afternoon, that, following the receipt of a letter from President Ross of Calgary, of the Western Canada Union, the series for the western Canada championship in Vancouver is now assured. Ross advised Dr. Shrum that the winning prairie team has been instructed to travel to this city and the conditions have been definitely set out.

Vancouver is required to guarantee $700 in the event of Calgary winning $1,000 to the Roughriders of Regina, and $1,500 should the Winnipeg St. John's emerge victorious. The dates are finally given as Saturday and Monday, November 16 and 17. The figures represent half the expenses of the travelling team.

Ross's communication means that the western championship will now be made or lost the title by default.

SUBURBAN SQUADS TO BE HOSTS

Orioles and West Road Bas-ketballers Will Perform at Lake Hill This Evening

Four Victoria hoop teams will play games at nearby community halls to-night and to-morrow night, with Lake Hill having the home games this evening.

Bob Whyte's Orioles will travel to the North Quadra hall to tangle with the Lake Hill women, while the home boys' team will play the West Road senior "C" five. The Orioles, although only a junior five by age limits, have had plenty of experience and are capable of giving practically any team a good game. Bob Whyte has spent a great amount of time with this team, and last year in the Sunday school play-offs they displayed some good ball.

In the second game, West Road's senior "C" five will open their season by taking on Lake Hill in what should be a great game. The West Roaders are all old hands at the game, and have been practicing hard. Lake Hill, which is a new team, have lined up a promising squad.

The first game will start at 7.30 o'clock.

GAMES AT WEST ROAD

To-morrow night, the Standard Steam Laundry, Fountain and Knights of Pythias will journey to West Road to play the home fives.

In the opening game, the Fountain, will tangle with the West Road senior "C" team. Last week the game was traveled to Keating, and although beaten, they gave a good account of themselves, and this time they hope to chalk up a win.

In the women's game the Standard will open their season by matching ability with Mary Beaton and her west-siders. The Standards have had one year's experience in the Senior "B" division and this year have dropped to senior "C." West Road, although they have never entered in a women's team in the City League, have always been able to field a team capable of holding their own with any Victoria five.

FEATURE GAME

West Road senior men will meet the Knights of Pythias in the feature game of the night, and one that should provide plenty of action.

The knights will be unbeatable on their home floor for years, and they intend to keep up the good record this season. The first game will open at 7.30 o'clock.

DOMINION "Y" OFFICIALS HERE

Mrs. P. Foster and Miss Hutchison to Attend Y.W.C.A. Tea To-morrow

Mrs. Percival Foster and Miss Winnifred Hutchison, officers of the National Y.W.C.A. headquarters at Toronto, will be among the special guests at the anniversary membership tea to be held at the Y.W.C.A. to-morrow afternoon to commemorate the opening of the building.

Mrs. Foster will speak on "Membership—the Place of the Y.W.C.A. in This Changing World." and Miss Hutchison's address will be on "International Immigration Work." A reception and tea will follow the addresses, which are timed for 3 o'clock.

Following a nuptial luncheon tendered them by the directors yesterday, the visiting officials held an interesting conference with the members in which work of the various branches of the organization was thoroughly reviewed.

BOARD'S RESPONSIBILITIES
Mrs. Foster, who is field secretary for the Y.W.C.A. in the west, speaking on "Leadership Within the Organization," stressed the importance of the responsibilities of board members for carrying out those purposes for which the Y.W.C.A. was organized. Chief of these aims, she said, was to create a real "home from home." Brief reference was made to duty of the association to take its part in the social life of the community.

Reference was made to the establishment of the world's Y.W.C.A. headquarters at 2 Rue Daniel Colladon, Geneva. The president of the world's association, Miss Van Asch van Wyck, a member of the nobility of Holland, was described by the speaker as an international stateswoman, an accomplished linguist, and an intensely charming personality. She succeeded such other noted women as Lady Parmer and Hon. Mrs. Montague Walden, members of whose family were among the original founders of the Y.W.C.A.

TRAVELERS' AID
Miss Hutchison, national secretary for travelers' aid and immigration work, gave an enlightening talk on the Y.W.C.A.'s activities among the traveling public. Referring to this particular branch Miss Hutchison said there were 250 places throughout Canada where facilities and resources are provided for the wayfarer. The care and adjustment of transients was the main purpose of this work, she stated, meeting the individual need, whether that be the tragedy of a lost transportation ticket or worry over a lost child.

Afterwards both officers addressed the members of the Welcome Club and the Blue Triangle Club, affiliated groups of the association.

Annual Meeting of Leaders' Council Held Wednesday Evening

Mrs. Hugh Nixon was elected president at the annual meeting of the Victoria C.G.I.T. leaders' council held in the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Nixon, who has been president for the past year, was re-elected. A very interesting report on the past year's work, and also on the two very successful girls' camps which were held during the summer at Maple Lawn, Sooke. A sincere vote of thanks and appreciation was tendered Mrs. Nixon for the capable way in which she acted as business manager for the camp, and to Miss G. Beall, who so successfully directed the intermediate camp. The treasurer's report showed a small balance in the treasury. Plans were made for this year's work and a committee meeting called for Wednesday, November 5, at 7:30 o'clock in the Y.W.C.A.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. H. Nixon; first vice-president, Mrs. T. Hammond; second vice-president, Miss G. Adam; recording secretary, Mrs. J. J. Relations of Government And Institutes Are Aired

Women's Institutes Conference Defeat Resolution Suggesting Cessation of Government Grant; Superintendent Refutes Charge of "Bossing"

Relations between the Provincial Government and the Women's Institutes of the province were aired at yesterday afternoon's session of the annual meeting of the South Vancouver Island District Women's Institutes, the matter coming before the gathering both in the resolution moved by Mrs. Humphries of Strawberry Vale and by Mrs. V. S. MacLachlan, superintendent of Institutes, during the course of her address.

SELF-SUPPORT MOTION DEFEATED

The resolution asking that, after 1931, the Women's Institutes of this province become self-supporting by financing their own activities according to some mutual agreement brought about in the interim met with defeat, after much discussion.

Mrs. T. C. Robson, of Vimy, who was in the chair, in putting the resolution to the meeting, after pointing out that the grant had been reduced from $1 to fifty cents per capita this year, stated emphatically: "This resolution, I am sure, does not mean that the institutes are desirous of breaking away from the government. We could not possibly get along without them. It means merely that some of the institutes feel that they would like to become self-supporting."

Several other delegates supported this view. One delegate asked if it would not be possible to refuse the grant and still have the assistance of the Department of Agriculture, but Mrs. MacLachlan stated that she did not think the act would permit this, as there would be no point of contact between the institutes and the government. "If this resolution goes through, please realize what it will mean. The institutes would be under no obligation to send in reports, the connection between the institutes and the department would be broken, and they would not be entitled to stationery or other supplies from the government."

After several of the delegates from the smaller institutes had expressed the opinion that they would be unable to carry on without the financial aid of the government, the motion was put to the meeting and was lost.

Further reference to the relation of the government and the institutes was made by Mrs. MacLachlan in her annual address, in which she emphasized the autonomous position of the individual institutes. The provincial board had no power whatever over the institutes, on the other hand, the institutes had the privilege of making suggestions to the board.

"ACCUSED OF BOSSING"

"Through the questionnaires I am trying to evolve a working plan, and it is for the institutes to make suggestions through these questionnaires," said Mrs. MacLachlan.

"This is solely the object of the questionnaires, yet I have been accused of trying to 'boss' or 'dominate' the institutes. How could one person dominate an organized body, when that body has in its hand the power to adopt or reject any of the proposals or suggestions sent out from the department?" she asked.

"No institutes in Canada have such fine co-operation from the government as ours," she said, "Columbia," the speaker insisted.

CONVENERS DUTIES

The duties and functions of provincial district and local conveners were enumerated by Mrs. MacLachlan, provincial superintendent. She followed the history of the provincial organization from the inception of the advisory board in 1921, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alfred Watt, to 1928 when the provincial board, as it exists to-day, was organized. She emphasized that each institute is a separate incorporated body.

The bulk of money raised by the institutes should be spent in each institute's own district, said the superintendent in outlining the function of the community betterment committee.

NEW INSTITUTES FORMED

Mrs. MacLachlan went on to relate the progress made in the number of institutes in the Province. New institutes had been formed at Golden, Port Moody, Oyster Bay and in the Peace River, while Alton was also enquiring as to the feasibility of forming an institute there.

These brought the total in the Province to 139. The superintendent spoke of the progress shown in handicrafts, such as the making of rugs with B.C. wool, glove-making and similar cottage industries. She told of the method of forming handicraft classes with the assistance of the director of technical education, through the night school classes, the department of education co-operating in this matter.

Mrs. McVicker presented her report as convener of the publicity committee. She told of efforts to collect photographs of the institutes for a booklet, and of the work of the committees of the Metchoin and Sooke districts. Twenty-three of these pioneers are to be guests of the institute at Metchoin Hall this evening.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Dr. A. O. Macrae in a brief and concise address told the members of the aims and ideals of the League of Nations. The League is free from the hampering restrictions which govern the affairs of a nation, such as statesmen, the press, national kudos, and is primarily a forum at which any nation may present its case. The new and remarkable thing which has been developed in the League is world public opinion, a most potent factor in handling world affairs, he stated.

The speaker urged the women to keep themselves and to see that their children were kept informed as to the developments of the League of Nations and its work for world peace.

Miss Crease brought greetings from the Local Council of Women and described the organization of the councils throughout the world and their place as a medium for the collection and dissemination of information upon various matters affecting the public weal.

Strawberry Vale Institute told of classes in rug-making, donations to the Travelers' Aid, League of Nations, Institute for the Blind and the Blakeburn mine fund; prizes for school children, and many other activities.

OTHLOA SCOTT FUND

Mrs. MacLachlan described the aims of the Othloa Scott fund, which was started to commemorate the efforts of the women's institutes in the movement which culminated in the establishment of the Salarium and the Crippled Children's Hospital in Vancouver. It is hoped to bring this fund up to $10,000. Mrs. Reid of Salt Spring Island brought to the attention of the conference the case of a crippled boy of eighteen who was too old for treatment at the Salarium, and it was left to Mrs. MacLachlan to look into the matter and circulate the institutes as to what might be done for this boy.

DISTRICT REPORT

The report of the district board was given by Mrs. W. Feden, the secretary. She prefaced the report with a brief review of her work as representative of the W.I. on the board of directors of the Salarium, and the receipt of $20 in per capita fees, and disbursement of $8 for expenses. Regret was expressed at the resignation of Mrs. Booth from the presidency of the board and the convenership of the child welfare and public health committee.

Mrs. Robson, acting chairman of the board, paid a warm tribute to the efficient work accomplished by Mrs. Booth as chairman of the board and as convener of the child welfare committee. Mrs. Service moved a resolution of appreciation to Mrs. Booth and that she be asked to reconsider her decision and to resume her convenership of the Salarium Child Hygiene Council.

BOARD ELECTED

Mrs. Robson, Mrs. W. Feden, Mrs. Webster and Mrs. R. Brown were re-elected by acclamation. Mrs. E. Clark of Shirley was elected to the board of directors. Others nominated were Mrs. J. D. Gordon, Mrs. Hopwood, Mrs. Laird, Mrs. McVicker, Mrs. H. Wise and Mrs. J. S. Adam, all but the first two declining nomination.

In the election held by the board members, Mrs. T. C. Robson of Vimy was elected president; Mrs. William Feden of Victoria, vice-president; and Mrs. Webster, secretary.

A resolution asking that the government set aside part of the grant for use of the District Board was defeated. In its place, a resolution was passed that the District Board assess each institute 10 cents per capita towards the board's expenses.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

ARE YOU GOING TO GIVE A CHILDREN'S PARTY?

It is a strong mother who can resist the impulse to give a birthday party for her infant. Of course the baby doesn't enjoy it. He often suffers subsequent distress from indulging in party foods, and from the irritation and indigestion which naturally follow excitement of any kind.

By the time her pride and joy is two years old, however, the mother feels some entertainment is due him. Parties are very much alike for the young child, but there are some pitfalls mothers might avoid to enhance the pleasure of any kind.

If the child is over two years old and under five years, the party had best be scheduled from two to four, with refreshments at three and departures promptly at four. This is a long enough period of excitement for small children, and gives them two hours to recuperate before dinner and bedtime.

SIMPLE REFRESHMENTS

Children over five may be entertained from four to six, with the party luncheon at five or five-thirty served in the form of a simple supper. Mothers should be told to call at six for their children.

The classic ice cream, cake and milk will probably do duty for the small child's refreshments; or very plain sandwiches, weak cocoa, and plain cake or cookies make a suitable lunch. Each child may carry a favor home with him; this may be a stick of barley sugar, or a man or animal made of toothpicks, dates, figs, raisins and a marshmallow.

For the older children any simple supper menu may be chosen, such as fish or chicken or lamb chops, baked potatoes in some cases, some green vegetable, whole wheat muffins, ice cream and plain cake or cookies and milk to drink.

Each child may be given a simple favor of some kind, such as the fruit man or candy stick or bright pencils, whistles, or toy autos. These should be alike for everyone, or of two varieties, one for the girls and one for the boys.

ALTERNATE TYPES OF GAMES

As for games, some older person or an older child should map out a routine of games that will keep the children alternately active and quiet. Too many noisy, active games lead to a listless, tired list of games suitable for parties and this is available to any reader. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to this department with your request for "Party Games."

Each child should enter into every game. One child is usually chosen to be "it" and whether he wins or loses, he should keep this position for only one game. Then some other child is chosen. Being the "go" for longer than one game puts the child in an inferior and unhappy position.

Parties are successful if they are short, if each child enters into the games, and if there are no prizes for superior prowess. If favors are distributed, they should be given to each child. A sharp-eyed hostess should see that each child is happily engaged in whatever activity is going on at the moment. Upon such tactful elimination of friction depends each child's happiness and incidentally the happiness of the group.

PUBLIC DOWRIES GIFT OF KING

Italian Monarch's Gift to Assist Poor Girls to Get Husbands

Rome, Oct. 24.—Public dowries, of which there are always hundreds in Italy, will receive a further addition on the occasion of the wedding to-morrow of Princess Giovanna, with King Boris of Bulgaria.

For it is certain that King Victor Emmanuel, her father, will bestow a number of dowries, as he did at the wedding of his son, Crown Prince Umberto, and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, last January. He then created fifty annual dots.

The public dowry is almost as much a traditional institution in Italy as the private dowry. It is intended to assist girls of the poor classes in obtaining husbands.

The podestas, or mayors, administer the money, and also impose the usual conditions. These conditions are that the age of the applicant for the dowry be between eighteen and twenty-five, that she belong to a poor family, be previously unmarried and know how to read and write.

In the case of the dowries given in January by King Victor Emmanuel each girl receives 500 lire or $25. This is an annual gift in perpetuity. It is to be granted every year on January 8, anniversary of the Crown Prince's wedding. It is annulled if the girl does not marry within twenty years after the dowry has been assigned to her, if she should be guilty of any crime and if she should die before contracting matrimony.

Other gifts similar in nature will be offered by municipalities on the occasion of Giovanna's and Boris's wedding. Couples married on the royal wedding day will receive a special grant. Children born on that day and named after one or other of the couple will bring an award to their parents.

King Victor Emmanuel created other public dowries when his older daughter, Princess Yolanda and Mafalda married Count Calvi di Bergolo and Prince Philip of Hesse, respectively.

The total sum tied up in dowries of this nature runs into many millions of lire. Thousands of girls have already benefited from them.

"Do Not Hesitate to Try It"

"Your Vegetable Compound is a good medicine. Anyone who is in poor health should not hesitate to try it. When I was taking the Vegetable Compound I tried the sample Liver Pills I found in the package. I have taken them every night since and I can feel myself improving. I am so thankful for the good they do me that I have told several women about it."

SCIENCE SOPHS INITIATE FROSH WITH COD OIL

Staves Are Also Wielded at Hazing Ceremony at Toronto College

Toronto, Oct. 24.—The beating of staves. Almost nude freshmen, protected from the winds by a one-piece suit of sackcloth. The high-roofed examination hall. Beats on the bare back. Enough cod liver oil to sink a ship. All these proclaimed to the world that the School of Practical Science of the University of Toronto was holding its annual initiations.

Two hundred and eighty sophomores pounded and otherwise mauled around 330 freshmen and made them like it. Through the several hours of riotous drumming on tables, drinking of soap suds and sliding down chutes blindfolded, not one lowly frosh was injured. In fact, after the meal they were given at Hart House they seemed to enjoy the affair, and one vowed that he would have something to tell his grandchildren.

A Star reporter was the first representative of the press in the long century of science initiations to be shown just how they were carried out. The dressing, or rather undressing, room of the frosh was on the top floor of the science building. There scanty clothing was the order of the evening until the staves arrived. From there each one was led like a lamb to the slaughter across the roads to the examination hall.

"The Canadian Car"

ENTHUSIASTIC letters about the Ford car arrive daily from every part of the world. The following is typical of a great number received.

"Just a word regarding our experience with the Model A Ford.

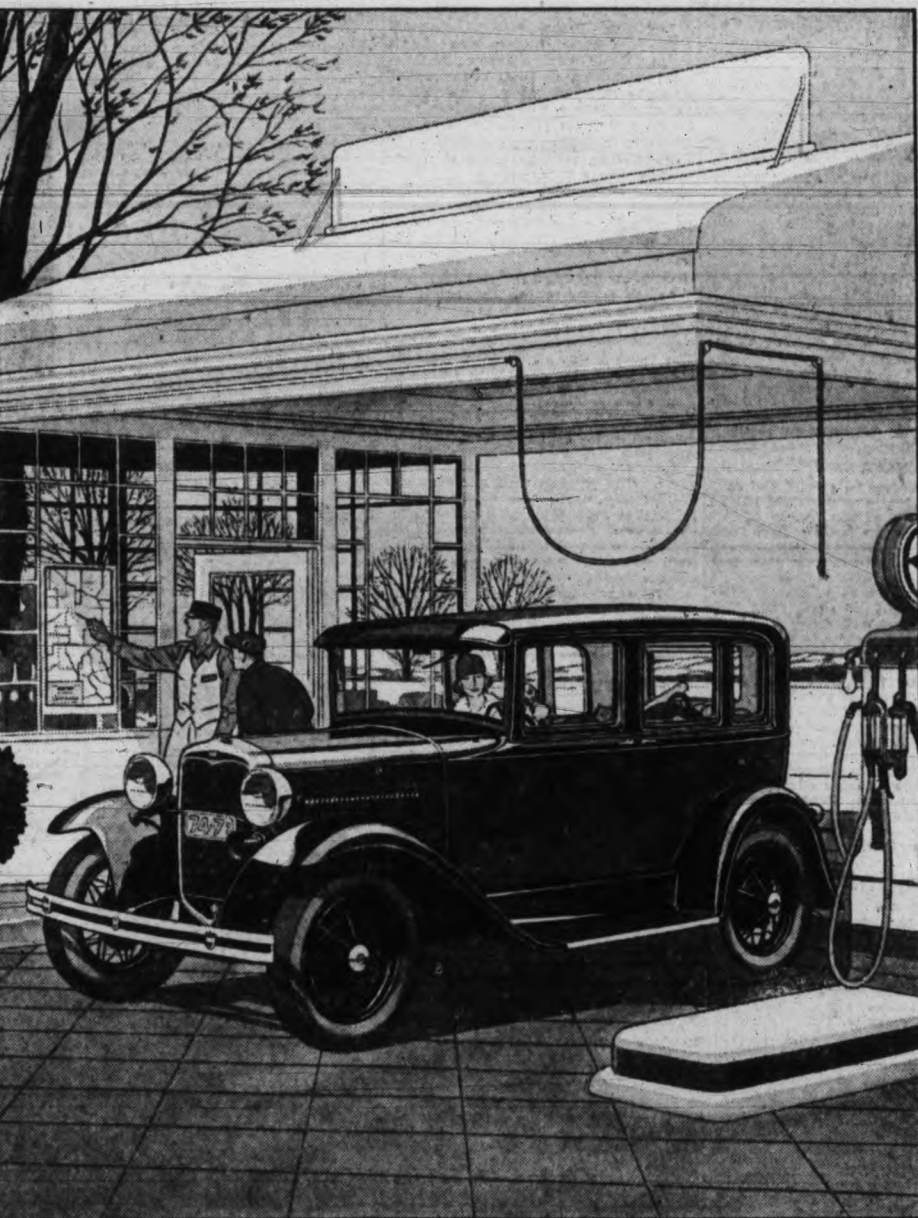

"In the first twelve months it was driven more than twenty-four thousand miles over all kinds of roads and in all kinds of weather, from the nearly impassable roads we had in the spring through the burning summer heat. Also through the heaviest of rain-storms where many cars were dead and had to sit on the roadside until they were dried out and pulled in, and through deep snow.

"The valves were ground at twenty thousand miles and apparently the car was running perfectly at that time, but some of the service men thought it would be advisable to grind them. Inspection of the motor at that time showed it to be in perfect condition.

"The only replacement expense we had was 75c for a shock-absorber link and 50c for a new rubber for the windshield wiper.

"The car has given an average better than twenty-four miles to the gallon of gas. We are well pleased with the performance of the Model A Ford car and believe it is the most economical car on the market."

Thousands of other Ford owners report the same satisfactory service and unusual economy of operation and up-keep. In comfort, safety, speed, power, beauty, reliability and long life—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—the new Ford is a value far above the price you pay.

Because of this value, the new Ford is outselling every other car in Canada by a large and increasing margin. In some sections, between 50% and 70% of all cars sold are Model A Fords. That's something to remember.

Luxton

An important milestone in the history of the Metochin Farmers' Institute was reached last night, when the remaining debentures payable on the land adjoining Luxton Hall, purchased by the institute a few years ago, were paid on Tuesday evening's social gathering, attended by 150 members and friends.

A favorable report of the recent fair was presented by the secretary. Some unusually fine exhibits had been entered, and the co-operation of all committees had resulted in an outstanding success, stated the president, C. E. Whitney-Griffiths, who also on behalf of the directors extended thanks to the teachers of the schools in the district who had arranged the sports. Mr. Whitney-Griffiths thanked L. G. Matthews, principal of the Colwood School, who had convened the sports.

Presentation was made in the garden competition of the Walter C. Nichol Challenge Cup to A. E. Wale and Mrs. L. O'Neill. Other winners in this competition included W. L. Whitney-Griffiths, John Trace and Miss H. L. Milne.

A varied programme was enjoyed by the audience, the items including sword dance by Miss Baba Pollock, songs by Miss Aileen Bennett and Miss Mary Higgs, recitations by Mrs. W. Thorne and Stanley Ball. The accompanists were Miss Valerie Ellwood and Piper Cameron.

A small presentation was made by the president on behalf of the Institute to Piper Cameron in appreciation of his co-operation and assistance in the past.

Dancing was enjoyed, the music being supplied by Schofield's Orchestra.

Refreshments were served by members of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute.

DAILY HEALTH SERVICE Source of Vitamin A Puzzles Scientists By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN

Although a number of years have passed since the importance of vitamin A in the diet was first noted, the precise activities of this vitamin in relation to life are not fully understood. Indeed, its source is not absolutely known. Notwithstanding this doubt and vagueness, all authorities are agreed that vitamin A is of the greatest importance for life and health and recommend a regular consumption of this vitamin by all human beings, and particularly for the growing child. When vitamin A was first studied, most of the attention was given to the diet of experimental animals. The complete removal of this vitamin from the diet caused an inflammation of the eyes called xerophthalmia. This disturbance does not disturb the average human being, but a great deficiency of vitamin A in the diets of people in some parts of the world, particularly in Labrador, indicates that the disease may occur in the human being in a large number of cases, accompanied in many instances by a visual disturbance called night blindness. In addition to complete absence of vitamin A from the diet, there is of course the possibility of vitamin A deficiency. Apparently the absence of a sufficient amount of vitamin A leads to easier infection. In a series of experiments carried out in Norway, everyone of 1,138 rats with vitamin A deficiency showed infections at time of death, particularly infection of the kidney. Some British investigators found that rats fed on a vitamin A deficient diet ceased to grow, and two leading investigators, Drs. H. N. Green and E. M. Allanby, confirmed the ease of infection on a vitamin A deficient diet. They proved, moreover, that the addition of vitamin A to the diet caused the infections to heal and prevented new infections. Such evidence as has been accumulated indicates that carotin, which is the yellow coloring matter in carrots and in other foods, has definite vitamin A properties. Vitamin A is not developed in the animal body and must be given in food. Apparently it is developed in the green coloring matter of plants. Cod liver oil is rich in vitamin A, and apparently there is some derivative of carotin in cod liver oil that gives rise to the vitamin A. Cod liver oil if properly stored will retain its vitamin A content for long periods. In addition to cod liver oil, several extracts contain both vitamin A and D, and are now available for those who wish to take the vitamins free from the oil. Unfortunately the extracts available are of two varieties - those that have been standardized and proved to contain sufficient amounts of both vitamins A and D to be of service, and those forms which have not been standardized and for which the claims

Les McNaughton Visits Old Home; Warns on Mines

Leslie McNaughton, M.E., former Victoria boy who has advanced to prominence in mining technique along the coast, is in Victoria on a visit to members of his family and old friends. He is now chief engineer of the White Swan Development, near Baker, Ore., which under private capital, is mining and milling gold-bearing ores.

Mr. McNaughton warned against copper promotions from the Oregon field, explaining that in the most widely distributed stock - ventures there bunches of promising looking copper were found on the surface and some bunches at points underground, but there was no adequate body to make its development commercially possible. He said millions of dollars of investors' money had been spent on some of these properties, but they could not get anywhere with them.

Says Depression Only 10 Per Cent. Below Normal

New York, Oct. 24. - President Schumaker of the R.C.A.-Victor Company in his address before the Merchants' Association of New York said: "Buying power is tied up by doubt and fear on the part of business men. In seeking reasons for confidence, we should realize that, after all, business is not very far below a normal year and it is a mistake to compare it with a year ago when it was abnormal and unhealthy. I believe it should be compared with a normal healthy year and then you will find the recession is only about 10 per cent, which should not be hard to overcome."

STRONG BODY TO SEEK GRANT FOR BEAUTIFICATION

Capital City Committee Will Interview Premier on Plan Tuesday

Special Fund, Allocation of Relief Money and Property Exchange Sought

With an exceptionally strong delegation to present the case, the Capital City Beautification Committee will interview Premier Talmie next Tuesday afternoon with proposals for a scheme of development and beautifying of this city.

Those making up the delegation will be: W. T. Straith, chairman; Aid. W. H. Cullin, Aid. Robert Smith and Aid. John Worthington; Hon. J. Hinchcliffe, Minister of Education; James H. Beatty, M.P.P.; H. D. Twigg, M.P.P.; Reginald Hayward, M.P.P.; Capt. J. W. Troup, P. R. Pemberton, C. L. Harrison, P. R. Leighton, W. J. Semeyn and C. P. Hill. Mr. Twigg will act as spokesman.

Two definite proposals will be submitted to the Premier as follows: An annual grant for improvement purposes over a term of years to be administered by a government-appointed commission.

Exchange of Albert Head property, owned by the Provincial Government, for the old Clover Point rifle range, controlled by the Dominion Government.

Setting aside a sum of money from the Federal unemployment fund to be used for improvement purposes.

These plans were drawn up at a meeting of the committee yesterday afternoon when a draft bill providing for the annual grant was considered. This bill asks for power to appoint a commission to administer the fund and for the borrowing of money by the commission on debenture with the sinking fund and interest to be taken care of by the Provincial Government. Covering a period of ten years it is proposed the total sum expended would be about $250,000.

In connection with the transfer of the Clover Point property to provincial control, in exchange for the Albert Head site, it is pointed out that the Provincial Government could then use some of the unemployment relief funds for the development of the Clover Point area under its general relief plan.

WOUNDING OF CHINESE WOMAN IS DESCRIBED

Ah Fook Appears in City Police Court on Charge of Assault

Relations of Accused and Woman's Daughter Caused Dispute, Court Told

With the courtroom crowded with Chinese, hearing of Ah Fook, otherwise Der Fook, on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Ng Shee and occasioning her actual bodily harm, opening in the City Police Court this morning.

Chinese marriage customs and morals were reviewed during the hearing, which was adjourned after a two-hour session until 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

According to evidence the alleged assault on Mrs. Ng Shee arose out of a dispute between her and her daughter over the male property kept by the girl. The girl has pleaded guilty to an assault charge in juvenile court and is in the industrial school.

The mother received serious knife wounds, as a result of which she spent ten days in hospital.

R. C. Lowe appears for the prosecution and Frank Higgins, K.C., for the defence. Summary trial was elected by the accused.

The wounds received by Mrs. Ng Shee were described by Mr. Walter Bapty, who attended her in hospital. The woman had several deep wounds on the scalp, a black eye, and had cuts on the hands, he said. It was quite possible these wounds had been inflicted by the butcher knife produced in court, he thought, but was not of the opinion that a meat cleaver and hand axe had been used.

Mrs. Ng Shee related how she had been attacked at the back of her home on Pandora Avenue. Her daughter had called her out to the woodshed, saying "Mama, half-past ten. Der Fook has arrived." About three minutes afterwards she went into the kitchen of her house and her daughter told her Der Fook was outside near the woodshed.

HIT BY FIST
Mrs. Ng Shee said she then went toward the woodshed and someone struck her on the back of the head with a knife. She turned slightly and was struck over the eye by a fist. Witness said she saw the accused.

"I then call out 'save life' and my daughter came and caught me round the waist. Then someone struck me with a knife. It could only be Der Fook," she testified.

Mrs. Ng Shee said she then put her hands behind her head to protect herself from the knife blows, still calling out "save life." Chinese expression for "help," and struggling to get out of her daughter's grip. When she got free she saw the knife at her feet and when her daughter tried to get it, she took it up and threw it into the reception room of her house. Her daughter ran after it but witness got it first and threw it into the corridor.

FAINTED
After running out to the street she fainted, witness said.

Mrs. Ng Shee identified the knife with which she said she had been struck.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Higgins, witness said her daughter had been "going around" with Der Fook for several months. On one occasion she had told Der Fook she did not want him to see her daughter. After asking him over the telephone to come and see her she had asked her daughter to tell Der Fook not to come to the house, she said. He came on the night that the assault took place.

ASKED TO MARRY?
Mr. Higgins asked witness if, on a previous occasion, she had asked Der Fook to marry her daughter?

"No, my intention was merely to talk to him about her," witness replied. "That was about two or three months ago."

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

Winnipeg, Oct. 24.—Wheat: With weak cables from Liverpool and a decidedly poor and disappointing export business overnight, the local market declined on the opening. The first period of this morning with long again liquidating. However offerings became scarce after the first rush and later there was buying drifting in from New York from time to time resulting in all the earlier losses being regained but this bulge was not held, the market again selling off in the late trade.

Chicago was again firmer than Winnipeg most of the day and the buying here was said to be largely spreading and largely for political purposes, as United States elections will be held shortly.

There was only a moderate demand for cash wheat with spreads generally unchanged except for No. 4 wheat for which there was a little better enquiry and odd cars were trading at 1/4 better. There was very little done for export, over-night sales being confined to a few scattered loads. Bradstreet's North American shipments, the week placed at 8,979 bushels, indicating that world shipments this week will total around 16,500,000 bushels. Russia is reported to have considerable unsold prices are being asked for this wheat. Conditions in the Argentine and Australia are excellent and larger than average yields are indicated. The Argentine market will likely hold firm until after the elections, and will very likely gain on Winnipeg, but we have little faith in the class of wheat being offered in the cash market for the markets to be all the weaker later on.

Liverpool firming up in the late trade and closed 1/4 to 3/8 lower. Wheat was 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 lower at noon. Winnipeg futures closed about on the bottom for the day, showing losses of 1/4 from yesterday's close. 1/4 better. Coarse grains—These markets continue more or less featureless with trade mostly of a local character. The nearby months have been tight at times with very little for sale, but holders get disgusted at the lack of business and liquidation which was going on to-day. Very little doing in the cash market.

Flax—Dull and featureless with an extremely small trade passing closing prices 1/4 to 1/8 lower.

FLIGHT

1928 By RUTH DEWEY GROVES "WHEN A GIRL LOVES" LOVE FOR TWO

In reality she meant "of freedom," because she was telling herself that once she was Alister's bride she must never let herself think of Dan Harvey again—Dan Harvey would not be forgotten.

Poverty was not quite such a tribulation to her now, either. She resented the change, in a way. "Why couldn't someone have come along and said, 'Here's your million,' while I was working at Fane's or when I wanted to send some little thing to mum?" she thought discontentedly.

That day she had sent her mother a silk crepe dress; two weeks before she had mailed a big box containing a coat, a coat with a real fur collar. The letter that came in acknowledgment made her weep tears of happy sympathy and understanding.

And she had insisted that Alister accept money to repay Dan Harvey for the expense he had put to in providing auto and railroad fares to Boston after their never-to-be-forgotten flight.

It had given her a feeling of delightful independence to be able to do this. "Why should I be allowed to cost him so much," she had said to Alister, "when he didn't want to go?"

"He was asked to go under my orders," Alister replied. "I'll take care of his expenses."

But he let Jerry give him her share to forward to Dan because he saw that it meant a great deal to her.

He guessed that she didn't want to be under obligation to his former flying instructor. Neither did he want her to, so he sent an equal amount to Dan at his home town where he was on a visit to his parents and brought orchids for her with Jerry's money—plus some of his own.

A week later Alister came to Jerry after the show with a very definite request that she announce their engagement. Jerry prepared to raise objections as usual, when Alister cut her short.

"I'm not going to wait any longer," he said resolutely. "Leontine is giving a party."

"Leontine?" Jerry said in surprise. "Yes, Alister went on levelly; and I've accepted for you."

Jerry lifted her head in a flash of anger. "I won't accept," she said hotly. "I should think you would know that."

"Jerry!" Alister caught her hands and held them tightly. "Leontine is... an old friend of mine. I might well tell you that I was pretty deeply infatuated with her until I met you. I can't deny that since I've not treated her... well, I... owe it to her."

"I can't see why," Alister said, taking a different attitude. "And if you refuse she will think she's not more important to you than..."

"She's nothing at all to me," Alister made an important gesture. "After we're married," he said, "she won't be of course. You will move in an entirely different circle, Jerry, but... we're not married, you know."

He added with an accent that Jerry sensed was a pointed reminder. "You mean that Jerry Ray can do things that Jerry Carstairs mustn't?" he flared at him.

"Jerry!" Alister exploded. "Can't you be sensible? You know what's what in this world as well as I do. But you have no legitimate reason for refusing to accept Leontine's invitation. It was not her fault that you met with an unpleasant occurrence at her place."

"She's very anxious to have you let her announce our engagement and if you want to please me, Jerry, you will consent. I had intended asking my mother to do it, but she's left for Alton."

"Couldn't we wait until she returns?" Alister turned a suddenly hard expression upon her.

"Jerry," he said in an exceedingly steady tone, "are you playing with me? If you are, I won't on, not a bit more gently, 'I'm through.'"

"You know you're not playing with me," Jerry replied; "but I think you ought to see that it would be embarrassing for me to be thrown with Leontine after what you've just told me."

"Nonsense," Alister said crisply. "But if you're just making excuses I'll know what to think. And the thing is certain—you're being very selfish."

"I'm not," Jerry cried. "If you care a much about it, I'll go, but..."

Jerry's sentence was not completed. She had been on the verge of telling Alister that she could not understand his desire to have his future wife associate with a woman like Leontine Leontine, when suddenly she remembered that she knew nothing against Leontine—except that she ran a road-house with an unsavory reputation.

If Alister felt that this indictment was not sufficient to place her outside the pale as far as his fiancée was concerned, she need not make an issue of it, Jerry told herself.

Besides, she had given in to Alister in very few things. What if she wanted him to go to a party at the home of some friend of hers? Certainly she would expect him to consider her wishes in the matter... she felt it only fair to consider his now.

"When is she giving her party?" she asked Alister abruptly.

"On Saturday, because I told her you won't stay up after two o'clock on any other night except mine."

"All right," Jerry said listlessly, and not even the wave of relief that swept Alister and expressed itself by his showering her with kisses, made her glad that she had yielded.

Jerry lived in a sort of shell for the next few days. Nothing seemed to touch her, though her room at the pretentious hotel where she was living was filled with flowers and other tokens of Alister's affection.

She stood before a bowl of violets one morning and ran her fingers gently over the tiny purple blooms. Once upon a time, she said softly, "I'd have thought it wonderful to have flowers sent to me each morning."

The words were followed by a sigh. "But I guess it's not so much having things sent to me as having them that matter," she added as she turned away.

Jerry was not finding what contact she had made with wealth as continuously fascinating as she had thought it would be. But neither had she forgotten the social days of her girlhood. The result was that she surrendered to the belief that thrills and ecstasy were only words in the dictionary.

But if wealth could not lift you to heavenly heights, certainly poverty could set you down in a bottomless pit where you had to be hard-hearted to do it, and you can't be hard-hearted and be a good actor."

She was still in a state of battling with herself when Saturday night arrived. She put on her bridesmaid dress with a heavy heart. One of the girls was out and Jerry was substituting.

There was something wrong with her to-night. The usual sparkle and vivacity were missing from her performance. Mr. Hule spoke to her about it when she came off stage.

Jerry tried hard to put some life into her dancing when she went on again. She was failing miserably when she changed to look out at the audience and saw Dan Harvey. He was sitting on an end seat, centre aisle, third row.

Jerry missed a step and Mr. Hule, in the wings, swore under his breath. But he wondered, before she came dancing off stage with the other girls, what had happened to her. Certainly she was animated enough now. And busy, too—sending a boy hurrying off with a whispered message.

Dan was leaving his seat for a smoke in the lobby when the boy reached him. He bent his head to take the message and then, much to the envy of a man in the second row who had overheard it, he started backstage, cursing himself every step of the way for being such a fool, a driving fool, a perfect fool, a blanky blank fool—in fact all the kinds of fools there are.

Jerry was waiting for him in her bridesmaid costume. She was looking modestly at him to conceal the dimple in her shoulder or the round swell of her proudly carried bosom—two things that at the moment were rising and falling in a most revealing manner.

But Jerry was not conscious that she was thus betraying her inner emotion. She went to Dan with the usual happiness, unmindful of the meaning he could put upon her welcome.

Dan was not conscious, which was unfortunate. Otherwise he'd have known that she was overjoyed to see him.

"Where have you been?" she cried, and stood on the tips of her toes to bring her face nearer to a level with his.

"Home," he said sparingly. "You never gave me a chance to

"It Is Just as Important to Know How to Spend Wisely as It Is to Know How to Save Wisely. And Between the Spendthrift and the Tightwad The Spendthrift Chooses the Better Part"

A POOR boy and girl got married on the proverbial shoestring. They were intelligent, energetic and ambitious and determined to rise in the world. So they worked hard and pinched pennies and eventually they achieved success, as the thrifty always do. During the lean years the wife toiled shoulder to shoulder with her husband. She uncomplainingly cooked and scrubbed and washed and ironed. She cheerfully sacrificed her natural feminine desire for pretty clothes and luxuries. She did without amusements and diversions, looking forward to the time when they would be sitting pretty on easy street and she would have plenty of money with which to buy dainty frocks and cars and travel and indulge herself in the amusements she craved.

Now that time has come. They have accumulated a large fortune, but in doing it the love of money has become an obsession with the husband and he cannot bear to part with a cent more than is absolutely necessary to live on. They might have a beautiful home in a desirable neighborhood, but he will not leave the dilapidated old house in a bad neighborhood because it would cost more.

They still walk and ride in the street cars because that is cheaper than keeping an automobile and when she asks for a cent more than the meagre allowance her husband gives her to keep house upon he shrieks with horror over her extravagance and the high cost of living.

This couple is childless. They are growing old and the wife, deprived of the comforts and luxuries she has helped earn, is becoming bitter as she reflects upon the irony of their denying themselves everything they want in order to leave the money that would have made them comfortable and would have added joy and brightness to their lives to some charity for which they care nothing or to greedy relatives for whom they care less. For, as the old phrase puts it, shrouds have no pockets and even the tightest fist relaxes in death and loses its treasures.

This case is not an uncommon one. Every one of us could match it up among our acquaintances. We all know rich men and women who are in reality paupers because they cannot bring themselves to spend the money they love better than they do their ease or pleasure or even life itself. For often they will literally starve themselves to death for lack of proper food or deny themselves the trip, the vacation, the change of climate that would have prolonged their days.

These people turn an admirable virtue into the worst of vices. Compelled to be thrifty in their youth, they have let the saving mania fasten itself upon them until they have become misers and to their love of money they ruthlessly sacrifice themselves and their families.

And to what end? A few more scraps of paper in their bank boxes that will be as worthless to them when they lie in their coffins as the paper money they scatter at Chinese funerals. A few more figures in a bank book that their dead eyes will not be able to gloat over. And then greedy heirs fighting over the estate. Children rejoicing that they are getting their hands on the money out of which a stingy father and mother kept them so long and that they can have at least the things they have craved so long.

Certainly thrift is very much to be commended in the young. As Mr. Mill said a long time ago, the ability to save is a test of character and you can judge whether a youth will be a success or a failure by whether he spends more than his income or less. Also, a man is lacking in even ordinary prudence and intelligence who does not lay up something for the rainy day and old age that are bound to come to us all.

But it is just as important to know how to spend wisely as it is to know how to save wisely, and between the spendthrift and the tightwad the spendthrift chooses the better part. For the waster, at least, has some fun as he goes along while the miser has none, nor does throwing money away harden the heart and deaden the sympathies as does clutching it too tightly.

If it is every man's bounden duty to save a reasonable proportion of his earnings, enough, if possible, to guarantee his independence and keep him from being a burden on others, but beyond that it is equally his duty to indulge himself in every luxury that he can afford.

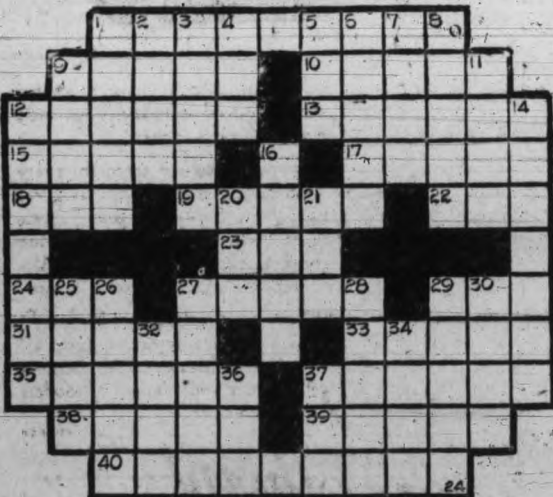

For we cannot save up our enjoyment to some future day and say that after a while I will feast or I will indulge myself in fine clothes or I will travel and see the far places that I so long to see. We can atrophy our desires and if we defer gratifying them year after year we cease to want anything and lose our power of enjoyment.

By the time we get ready to order our feast we have dyspepsia and can only eat stale crackers and milk. By the time we get ready to order Paris frocks our youth and beauty are gone and sackcloth and ashes look just as well on us as chiffon. And when we are ready to start on our great adventure our rheumatism ties us to a steam radiator at home.

The moral of all of which is both to save and to spend with moderation, for that is the only way in which we can get the pleasure out of to-day and still keep an umbrella in the closet in case to-morrow should be rainy.

DOMINION FEATUREBlack-haired, black-eyed, handsome Charles Rogers and red-haired, blue-eyed Nancy Carroll, the lovers of "Atie's Irish Rose," of "Close Harmony," make a "peach of a pair" in Paramount's all-Technicolor moving picture production of the famous Schwab and Mandel stage hit, "Follow Thru."
"Follow Thru," which opened yesterday at the Dominion Theatre, for three days, is a love story with a golf club setting and a world of comedy. Laurence Schwab, himself, went to Hollywood to direct it in conjunction with Lloyd Corrigan, taking with him everything he needed from the original two-year Broadway hit, including Zelmie O'Neal and Jack Haley, its lively, youthful, convulsing comic leads. Also he brought with him the catchy song hits, including "Burton Up Your Overcoat," and Paramount song writers supplied him with a few new ones.

BEBE DANIELS IN

DRAMATIC ROLE IN

"LAWFUL LARCENY"

An hour of absorbing, entertaining, according to reports, is "Lawful Larceny," starring Bebe Daniels, which opened yesterday at the Capitol.

It is an adaptation from an original stage success, presented by a group of former stage celebrities, including Lowell Sherman, Olive Tell, Kenneth MacKenna, Funnell Pratt, Lou Payne, Bert Roach, Maude Turner, Gordon Helene Millard and Charles Coleman.

Sherman fresh from his triumph in "He Knew Women," directed the production and also enacted an important role.

Miss Daniels is presented in an entirely new and powerfully dramatic role, that of a wife who sets out to steal her husband back from the modern-day "siren" who stole him.

PLAYHOUSE SHOWS

MUSICAL COMEDY

WITH BESSIE LOVE

Nita Martin's freak mezzo-soprano "blue" voice landed her the role of the prima donna in "Chasing Rainbows." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new musical movie which is playing at the Playhouse Theatre.

Miss Martin, who studied for the concert and operatic stage, discovered her "blue" voice "was worth more in vaudeville and musical comedy." In the new talking picture she demonstrates its freak range to advantage.

Bessie Love and Charles King play the leading roles in the backstage romance which Charles F. (Chuck) Reisner directed. The supporting cast includes Jack Benny, Marie Dressler, Polly Moran, Owen Lee, George K. Arthur and Eddie Phillips.

LEOPARD HUNTING

AT THE COLISEUM

HAS MANY THRILLS

The sport of trapping leopards is one that requires good nerves and while the native African hunter frequently resorts to his spear to kill the beast, white hunters often try to take the animal captive but unharmed. Probably with this idea of supplying this requirement, the natives build traps from bamboo and then beat the coverts until the leopard dashes into the area which culminates in a trap.

The method of trapping as well as spearing leopards is shown most effectively in "Ingagi," which is being shown at the Coliseum to-day. One beautiful specimen is taken alive, trussed up and finally caged for shipment.

"The leopard is a solitary brute. He is utterly merciless and a predatory creature who is usually-hungry and a dangerous antagonist when he is cornered."

Besides the leopard episode, there are dozens of other thrills in "Ingagi."

SPECTACULAR DUEL

WITH KEN MAYNARD

AT THE COLUMBIA

One of the most spectacular sword duels ever filmed is a feature of "Senor Americano," Ken Maynard's latest talking picture for Universal, now showing at the Columbia Theatre. The duel is fought by Maynard and Gino Corrado, who contend as rivals for the hand of a beautiful Spanish-California girl, portrayed by Kathryn Crawford. The picture deals with Southern California during the most glamorous period of its history. Harry J. Brown directed.

FRENCH FOREIGN

LEGION PICTURE

COMING NEXT WEEK

Edward Blom, director of "Hell's Island," Columbia's dramatic spectacle about the French Foreign Legion, scheduled to run at the Playhouse Theatre next week, is well qualified to handle a picture of this type.

A few years ago, while on a tour through Northern Africa, Mr. Blom's party was given the escort and protection of a detachment of the French Foreign Legion. For several weeks he lived among this group of men and made many useful notes on their manners and discipline.

JUNGLE ROMANCE
BOOKED TO PLAY
AT THE DOMINION

The traffic in women, black slavery it might be called, goes on in a flourishing manner in the African jungles according to Paul L. Hoefler, who made "Africa Speaks" for Columbia Pictures. He says that women are considered as property and are sold and traded as such. Girls are placed on the market when at the marriageable age, which is from twelve to sixteen years. Proof of this is revealed conclusively in the jungle romance Hoefler went to the equator to make. It comes on Monday to the Dominion Theatre for a week's engagement.

"SACRED FLAME" IS
COMING NEXT WEEK
TO THE COLUMBIA

Very appropriately, since the scenes of the latest Warner Brothers production, "The Sacred Flame," are laid in England, several members of the cast were in the British Isles or have the English manner. Walter Byron and Alec H. Francis, who both play prominent roles in support of Pauline Frederick, the star, were born in England. Miss Frederick was born in Boston, but her back Bay speech has a decidedly English accent. Eugene Pallette, Lila Lee and Dale Fuller are also in the cast. "The Sacred Flame" opens an engagement at the Columbia Theatre on Monday next.

S.P.C.A. Hears Of Abandonment Of Little Puppies

The regular monthly meeting of the committee of the S.P.C.A. branch of the B.C. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held last Tuesday in the new office, Campbell Building.

The inspector reported several cases of abandoning puppies and kittens, for which act of cruelty a penalty is provided under the criminal code. During the month forty-eight cases were attended and 1,058 animals and birds inspected.

The committee appointed at the last meeting to inspect the stables at the Willows reported them to be in good condition.

It was reported that Mrs. Findlay, secretary of the Midlothian, Edinburgh, branch of the Scottish S.P.C.A., had paid a visit to Victoria on October 7, and had been met by a committee of the ladies and the secretary.

It was decided to hold the annual general meeting on the evening of Friday, November 28, at 8 o'clock.

TRAIL WANTS
GOVERNMENT
HIGHWAY WORKCouncil Says City Unable to Go Fifty-fifty on Unemployment
Relief

Trail, B.C. Oct. 24. — Trail City Council yesterday evening ordered cancellation of negotiations with the Provincial Government regarding unemployment relief on a fifty-fifty basis with the government.

The council decided to back the Board of Trade on the alternative suggestion that the Provincial Government carry out this winter highway construction work solely needed in the Trail district.

The council took this stand because of lack of available funds to go in with the government on relief work, and because of the belief that a money-by-law if submitted would not pass.

The government's proposal for relief work calls for aid on labor costs only. Trail, it is pointed out, would be forced to spend large sums on pick and shovel work that could be done more economically by machinery purchased recently by the city through a by-law authorized by the ratepayers.

The council believes the Trail unemployment situation different from that of any other locality, inasmuch as all local men are working steadily at the smelter, and the men needing aid are mostly transients attracted to the city by smelter work.

Sir R. Johnston

Scottish Mess

Sir Reginald Johnston, retiring British commissioner at Weihaiwei, addressed the regimental mess of the 16th Canadian Scottish Regiment yesterday evening, giving an outline of the history of that colony from the time of its acquisition by Britain until it was ceded back to China on October 1 of this year.

The mess elected its officers for the year, Major Gordon Smith being chosen as president. Major P. R. M. Wallis was named vice-president, with other officers as follows: Secretary, Lieut. C. F. Fraser; assistant secretary, Lieut. Parker; mess committee, Major R. Kingham, Major Walter Bapty and Capt. the Rev. Father Wood.

NORWAY CABINET
POLICIES CHANGED
BY THE ELECTION

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 24. — Premier Johan Mowinckel probably will continue as Norwegian premier when the new Storting opens its sessions early in the new year.

He will have with him probably his entire present Radical Cabinet, given a new lease on life in Monday's parliamentary election, which returned thirty-four Radicals to the Storting.

The Cabinet will have some of its policies changed, however. One of the planks of the Radicals' election platform was anti-labor legislation, so it now must stand on its own feet without labor in the coalition. Since the Conservative strength was greatly increased in the election, no Radical reform legislation is expected.

The new Storting will be divided as follows: Laborites, 47; Conservatives, 44; Peasant Party, 25; and Radicals, 34.

BOYD IS TO TRY
SECOND ATLANTIC
FLIGHT IN SPRING

London, Oct. 24.—Captain J. Errol Boyd, Canadian pilot, and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor, of the United States, his navigator, who were planning to make a return flight across the Atlantic early next month, have definitely postponed the attempt until next spring.

The two men, who flew to England from Harbor Grace, Nfld., eleven days ago, had been planning to use their monoplane, Columbia, for the first round trip north Atlantic attempt.

When the airmen eventually start the return flight they will do so as owners of the Columbia, for Sherwin Cottingham, aviation enthusiast in Montreal, has bought the veteran plane from Charles A. Levine, and presented it to Boyd and Connor on condition they do not attempt to fly the Atlantic again this year.

Boyd and Connor, who will soon call for Canada, plan to return to England in the spring.
